MISSIONARY QUIZ

MRS. DANIEL CAMPBELL IS HOSTESS TO MEMBERS OF MISSIONARY BOARD

Mrs. Daniel Campbell was hostess Wednesday afternoon at an unique and pretty high tea when her guests were the ladies of the executive board of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Campbell is serving her second term as president of the society and took this way of showing her appreciation of the support given her by her officers in the past and also of welcoming the new members of the board.

The guests were hospitably received at Ard-Eevin, Mrs. Campbell's beautiful home in the foothills, special guests for the afternoon being her mother, Mrs. Daniel McPeck of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Robert Clelland, who is president of the Presbyterian society of Southern California.

Mrs. Campbell had provided a novel form of entertainment for her guests and one that proved very interesting as well as being a means of sharpening the wits. Each lady was given a printed folder containing questions in regard to church and missionary work, with spaces for writing in the answers. This quiz was entirely original with the hostess and was very ingenious and clever. Music on the Victrola was sweet and restful after the effort required to answer all the queries on the card, although we do not insinuate that it was a difficult matter for the ladies to answer the questions.

Covers were laid at small tables in the dining-room, the central one containing a large basket of Cecil Brunner roses with ivy leaves and Cecil Brunner buds scattered over the cloth. The other tables had decorations of the same flowers.

Those who enjoyed Mrs. Campbell's gracious hospitality and as a result feel better prepared to go on in the work of the society, are: Mrs. Clyde Brooks, Mrs. A. Avers, Mrs. Z. L. Hesse, Mrs. R. W. Meeker, Mrs. W. S. Perrin, Mrs. F. A. Field, Mrs. J. F. Lilly, Mrs. T. W. Preston, Mrs. G. W. Lemon, Mrs. H. R. Boyer, Mrs. G. F. Chandler, Mrs. John Horch, Mrs. F. J. Adams, Mrs. A. D. McCoy, Mrs. E. Sinclair, Mrs. H. C. Tupper, Miss Cornwell; also the following new officers: Mrs. M. P. Harrison, Mrs. W. E. Edmonds, Mrs. David Black, Mrs. W. J. Smith, Mrs. Wm. Scott, Mrs. Clendennin, Miss Grace Richardson. Mrs. H. W. Robertshaw's absence from town prevented her from accepting this courtesy.

G. U. H. S. WINS FROM HARVARD

The Glendale Union high school baseball team defeated the Harvard military academy nine Wednesday afternoon on the latter's diamond by a score of 10 to 4. Farner pitched the first eight innings for Glendale, when in the eighth he allowed one of the opposition's sluggers to slam out a home run with two men on bases. Lukins then finished the game. Glendale's ten tallies were gathered in about all sessions of the game.

On Saturday afternoon Glendale crosses bats with the Alhambra high school aggregation and a good game is predicted. The following will probably be the line-up for Saturday's affair: McNutt, c; Bidwell, p; Kolts, 1b; Stauffacher, 2b; Livingston, ss; Phillips, 3b; Coole, lf; Latter, cf; Lukens, rf; Nichols, Middleton, Farner and Ames on the bench.

D. A. R. MEETING

One of the most pleasing and harmonious meetings of the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution ever held took place at the home of the regent, Mrs. John H. Braly, 205 North Brand boulevard. There was a full attendance. The society proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year.

It was generally agreed that there was not the slightest necessity for any change in the official roll. The society was in amiable mood and pleased with the record made by its regent of last year and re-elected her by acclamation. The other officers were all re-appointed. The leading officials for the ensuing year are as follows: Mrs. John H. Braly, regent; Mrs. A. T. Babcock of Ramona, vice-regent; Mrs. T. W. Preston, Adams street, secretary; Mrs. S. C. Loppelman, treasurer; Mrs. L. Patterson, registrar; Mrs. Wm. Herman West, chaplain.

The committee on rules and by-laws presented its report, which was adopted unanimously. Business over the meeting proceeded to refreshments and enjoyed along with luncheon a choice selection of music and social chat.

THE FLOWER SHOW

PROMISES TO BE ONE OF THE BIG FEATURES OF THE GLENDALE FESTIVAL

Mrs. Oliver O. Clark drove to Alhambra Wednesday and took with her, Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, Mrs. J. C. Waite, Mrs. Harlan and Mrs. Holland. These ladies visited the flower show being given by the club women of Alhambra, for the purpose of getting some pointers in regard to the flower display to be held in connection with the festival of fruit and flowers. While there, they secured Mr. Turner, the Rose man of Montebello to act as one of the judges at the Glendale show. Mr. Turner had a wonderful display of cut roses at the Alhambra show and he promised to bring an exhibit with him to Glendale but he will not compete for any of the prizes. Mr. Turner is one of the greatest authority on roses in the United States and the ladies feel that they are very fortunate indeed to secure his exhibit and his services as judge at the show they are planning. Many useful hints were secured as to the arrangement of exhibits and the like. They also learned many things in regard to the manner of conducting the show. The city trustees of Alhambra appropriated $100 to be used by the women to help in defraying the expenses of the flower show.

Through the kindness of Mr. J. A. Pirtle and Borthick Bros. the club has secured the beautiful, large, new garage building which is just being completed at the corner of Brand boulevard and Colorado street for the show and they expect to have the finest and best flower exhibit ever held in this part of the state. Mr. Turner's gorgeous collection of roses will be a decided attraction to all flower lovers.

Exhibits of cut flowers may be entered at the above mentioned building on the morning of May 27 between 8 and 9. Circulars giving further particulars and a list of flowers called for, will be issued soon.

IMPORTANT CHANGE

At a social gathering of the congregation of the First English Evangelical Lutheran church, and the friends of the congregation held on Tuesday evening at the parsonage, 340 S. Central avenue, a very important change in the place of holding worship was unanimously passed upon. By the very courteous consent of the Seventh Day Adventist congregation of this city, the First English Evangelical Lutheran church will begin holding public divine services in their building, corner Third and Isabel streets this coming Sunday morning with Sunday school at 10 o'clock and preaching service at 11 o'clock. These services will continue indefinitely. There will be no evening services for the present. All Lutherans and friends are invited to worship with us. The subject of the morning sermon will be, "Go Forward."

PIONEER CLUB

Combining active work with amusement, the Pioneer club always manages to extract the greatest amount of united pleasure and profit from its well engineered meetings. There was no exception to this rule in yesterday's meeting. There was a large attendance of the members of the club at the home of Mrs. A. R. Chappell, 1437 Myrtle street, and the members accomplished quite a deal of practical sewing work. After work was finished, a social meeting was held with music and other entertainment.

SCHOOL REPORTS

The grave question has been asked, "Why a mouse?" A sage has evolved the answer, "The fewer the better." This in general applies to school reports. Let us consider this ancient and honorable institution pro and con. Has it survived the ages by reason of its real value, or as a result of ancestor worship, or for lack of something better to serve the purpose it is supposed to serve—viz., to keep the parents informed as to the progress of the child, to act as an incentive to the child himself, and to form a basis for promotion? Now does the report card do any of these things? Could not the time and energy teachers now give to keeping and averaging reports, filling out cards, etc., be better spent? Is the report a fair judgment? Can real progress be reduced to letters and figures? What is the child working for?

On his return from school one night, Johnny's father asked him whether he had received any marks that day. "Yes," was the reply, "but they're where they don't show." The marks we should covet for our children may not have the same location as Johnny's, but nevertheless do not always show marks of true progress, of growth in mind and heart, marks that make for strong character and mental calibre, for noble and useful manhood and womanhood. What of their power of concentration, their ability to stick to a task until it is well done for the joy of the doing or the knowledge gained? True, these are somewhat intangible motives for immature minds, but if one works merely for the mark he receives in this world, has he not a pitiful incentive?

Teachers fortunate enough to have taught long in one place and to have had the opportunity to follow their boys and girls, and we as we look back over our own school days, realize how often the hopelessly stupid plodder goes out and plays his part well in the world of affairs, while others, flashy and brilliant in mere book knowledge, fail to make good. Their school work came easy to them and they failed to grasp the real meaning of life.

Little we realize how many a child's report card is lead in his hands and heart. Though he has tried, there stands that awful E, while his more fortunate (?) companion has an A without half trying. Is the teacher to be blamed for this apparent injustice? She certainly will be in most cases, guilty or not. (Continued on Page 4)

INTERESTING MAPS

ALL POINTS OF INTEREST IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA ARE SHOWN

The First National Bank of Glendale has issued advertising matter in the form of maps which will be invaluable to all those who are fortunate enough to be patrons of this bank, and will also serve to make the people of this vicinity more familiar with the many beautiful and interesting places surrounding Glendale. One one side of the sheet is a large auto road map of Southern California extending from Riverside county on the south to Saugus on the north, and from Banning on the east to the Pacific on the west.

All points of interest and auto roads are plainly marked. The mountains are shown and the height of the most important ones given; also the distances between the most important points. The good roads, the wagon roads, El Camino Real, the trails, boundary of counties, boundaries of cities and gasoline stations are shown. On the reverse are maps of Glendale, Tropico, Casa Verdugo and Glendale Heights and another map showing some of the delightful trips out of Glendale.

To one who has not sought out the beauty spots about Glendale, this map is a revelation as to the many interesting points that may be visited in a motor trip of only a few hours from this city. A drive of unrivalled beauty takes the motorist through Montrose, Sunland, La Canada, over the Devil's Gate at Altadena, Pasadena and the many attractions of that matchless city, through Alhambra, San Gabriel and the Old Mission, Eagle Rock, etc. Some of the places marked on the map are Tournament park in Pasadena, the ostrich farm, San Gabriel Mission, Altadena Country club, Mt. Wilson, Raymond and Huntington hotels in Pasadena, Occidental college, Griffith park, the Busch-sunken gardens, Church of the Angeles, the Arroyo Seco and many other places of interest to the tourist and the resident alike.

The folders also contain good half-tone cuts of the First National bank and its allied institution, the Glendale Savings bank; a Glendale street scene and a view of the valley.

GLENDALE HEIGHTS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark after a stay of several weeks in Glendale, Heights have returned to the city where they will be at home to their friends at 41st St. and Menlo avenue. A few days previous to their departure Mrs. Clark was guest of honor at an afternoon tea where she was "showered" with jelly, preserves and other good things for her pantry, all cunningly concealed in a basket of Cecile Brunner roses.

Mrs. Woodill entertained a party of young ladies at her place on Ophechee Way last Saturday afternoon. Mr. Woodill and family have been spending their week ends at their Glendale Heights home, though they have only built a temporary residence as yet.

Mrs. Bartlett entertained for her grandson at their Glendale Heights residence last week.

The sidewalks on Canada boulevard are laid and ready for use now, and work is going on around the park.

This annual celebration is growing in importance as time goes on and it is believed that the coming day will be one of the most enjoyable ever experienced.

Chapter A-H of the P. E. O. will meet at the home of Mrs. John Hobbs of 600 North Central avenue, Tropico, tomorrow afternoon. The meeting will be a regular business session and a large attendance is expected.

AUTO COLLISION

MRS. C. O. PULLIAM SERIOUSLY SHAKEN UP IN LOS ANGELES ACCIDENT

While attending the electrical parade in Los Angeles last Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Pulliam, 148 South Kenwood street, met with what might have been a very serious accident. As it was, the accident might easily have proved fatal. The Pulliam party were making the turn at Eighteenth and Main streets when another auto driven by a Mr. Lewis, running at a speed of about twenty-five miles an hour, bumped into them with so much violence that Mrs. Pulliam was thrown out on the street.

Falling on her head and shoulders, Mrs. Pulliam was rendered unconscious and lay in that condition for about half an hour. The Pulliam party returned home the moment Mrs. Pulliam could be moved.

After her arrival in Glendale she was unable to move. In that serious condition she has continued until today, when she is able to get around a little.

CLASS FUNCTION

Miss Bessie L. Field, 239 South Kenwood street, in connection with the Presbyterian church, has been highly successful in her work as a Sunday school teacher. Miss Field has trained a charming class of young girls to the number of fifteen all winter and has gained both the affection and respect of her pupils.

The affair took place at the home of Miss Field Wednesday at 3:30 p. m. The whole class was present. The room was charmingly decorated in pink and white with Cecil Brunner and La France roses. The girls of the class contributed to the general pleasure of the afternoon by music. Refreshments were served and many games played.

ENTERTAIN AT Y. M. C. A.

An enjoyable little affair took place at the Y. M. C. A. last night when Mr. and Mrs. McRae of 1436 Salem street entertained a select company. Mr. McRae is field secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and has been largely occupied with county work. The supper party was for the purpose of bringing together a few of the leaders in that field.

Among those present were Mr. Albert E. Roberts of New York City, interstate secretary of county work; Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Willis of Milwaukee. There was much pleasant, informing and profitable discussion of county work methods. During the course of the evening Mr. Willis and Mr. Ritchie gave short addresses that contained great stimulus for local workers.

FLORAL BEAUTIES

Glendale has a soil that is highly favorable to the cultivation of roses. With ordinary care roses of every variety can be grown here with gratifying success. Striking demonstration of this was afforded the office of the Glendale Evening News this week when several of our friends brought in fine specimens of roses of various kinds. Mrs. John Pirtle of Glendale Heights was one of those who remembered to brighten up the interior of our office with a floral tribute. Mr. R. Gilhouse of 537 South Kenwood street gratified our sense of beauty by bringing in a magnificent rose measuring five inches across its beautiful blossoms, while the roses sent in by Mrs. C. M. Sparr, 534 Jackson street, rival in perfume the richest products of the Gardens of Gul.

BETTER BABIES BUREAU

The better baby contest to be given in connection with the Glendale Festival of Fruits and Flowers and which is in charge of Mrs. Scott W. Johnson and committee, have opened a permanent information and registration bureau at 428 South Brand boulevard.

THE ANCIENT BRAHMANS

The Brahmans were the lawyers, priests, professors, the sole instructed class, the sole authorities on taste, morality, the sole depositaries of whatever stood in the place of science. Everybody was to minister unto them, everybody to give way to them. The Brahman was above the law. He was "not to be subjected to corporal punishment, must not be imprisoned or fined or exiled or reviled." In the law of the Vishnu it was written: "The Brahmans sustain the world. It is by the favor of the Brahmans that the gods reside in heaven." Under English rule and ideas the ancient caste has lost some of its prestige, but is still a forcible reminder of its former grandeur.—New York American.

ADHERING TO TRUTH

"Magna est veritas et prevalebit," said the Romans—"Great is truth and it will prevail." The ancients occupied themselves profoundly with discussion of the nature of truth. "What is truth?" said Pilate in answer to Christ's declaration that he was come to bear witness to the truth. The Roman's sarcastic or it might even have been sorrowful question remains unanswered to this hour, except in so far as it was answered by Christ himself. He laid down his life for the truth and thereby set up for us common people a standard of life that is high enough to raise those who practice it above the common herd.

It is impossible to do without truth. If there were no truth in man's dealing with his fellow man, the world could not exist any longer. It would lose its very life. Truth is the savor of life and without it there is nothing but rottenness and dead men's bones.

Take any community such as the one in which we live. It is not possible to attain any standing here if we are not known as truthful. No man can expect to retain the respect of the community if he palter with truth. It may be that the individual sense of the community taken here and there would not show a very high standard as far as truth is concerned; but when the common conscience is consulted, we come at once in contact with a higher standard.

No American public of the present day will tolerate very long the man who is continually misrepresenting matters in his business or even in his daily life. The man of double dealing and the man of double life is certain to find at last his level in the estimation of the community. Sooner or later a man is known for what he is. He cannot go on from year to year writing himself down an ass, or a hog, or a brute of any description and imagine the public will not find it out.

If public men desire a reputation for honesty and integrity they must be absolutely honest and square in their dealings with their fellows. Away back in the days before Christ, Horace the Latin poet sang of the man who was "integer vitae scelerisque purus"—upright in life and free from evil—as rare a combination in Roman Augustan life as it often has been in American political circles. Such a man, said the poet, fears not the countenance of the tyrant nor the rage of the people hastening to unripe measures.

It is much the same now. No man can take a stand in great popular crises if he is not himself absolutely beyond the suspicion of dishonesty. No man can stand in the presence of a wicked power and hope to survive if he himself can be convicted of serious faults.

From the very first days of childhood to the last hour of life it is necessary to observe this principle. Strict truth should characterize all our teachings of our children. We should not tamper with the truth even for the sake of some temporary quieting of a crying child. Thereby too often the lesson of falsehood is instilled into the youthful heart. Everyone remembers Aesop's famous fable of the boy who cried "Wolf, wolf!" once too often.

In business it is the same. The twisted lessons of childhood soon bear evil fruit and the young business man by crooked methods—"fire sales" where there has been no fire, "bankruptcy sales" when there has been no bankruptcy, foreign sales when there has been no foreign importation, and by a thousand other dishonest devices—loses the last shred of business morality and sinks down into the category of "business faker." The last state of that man is worse than the first.

It is the same in public political life. The man who will set about getting signatures to a petition—say on any public question—for personal reasons or for personal likes or dislikes to individuals, is likely soon to become known himself as a fraud.

Most of our readers will have in mind certain newspapers throughout the land which have made for themselves a reputation for disingenuousness that is hurtful to them in the extreme. Honest people laugh when the name of those sheets is mentioned. "Oh," say they, "you saw that in Blank's paper, didn't you? That is enough."

Nothing pays in this world like the truth. To be known as speaking the truth is to be possessed of an asset of the most valuable kind. The world is easily deceived at times, but never all the time. Ultimately a man has written down his character in plain, bright, easily-read letters and by that self-record he will have to stand.

IN LOWER CALIFORNIA

Lower California is a most desirable spot. There are several thousand American business men who know it and have their eyes on it. Big syndicates and combinations of capital have been purchasing property there and getting options on land throughout the peninsula. Mexico, also, is in treaty with its own people for the establishment of a stable government there and is by no means anxious to transfer its title to the United States on any account.

Nevertheless, it is not by any means impossible that Lower California may yet come under American rule. At the close of the prolonged internecine strife that is at present devastating Mexico, it is likely that the United States' bill of damages may be so large that Mexico may be glad to defray it by ceding Lower California to Uncle Sam.

It would be a fortunate thing for this country as well as for Lower California. This country needs Lower California for the purpose of guarding its rapidly developing agricultural lands in Imperial valley. The water supply of the valley comes from the Colorado river through Mexican territory and the dam sites and construction enterprises along the river should not be at the mercy of a foreign enemy.

It seems not to be generally known that the Imperial valley runs down into Lower California and that the land in the peninsula is just as fertile and valuable as that in the valley, and has farther advantage in being closer to seaports.

Lower California, if it can be acquired in any legitimate and honorable manner, should be added to American territory. Meanwhile, it may be well for advanced jingoists to remember the commandment that forbids the coveting of one's neighbor's goods.

UNSANITARY PRACTICES

When Haroun Alraschid, father of the faithful, wanted to find out what was going on in his oriental capital, he used to disguise himself and wander 'round the market place and other public centers, and he generally managed to hit on some abuse and set it to rights. If the citizens of Glendale will take a look some early morning 'round the business center of this city, they will probably see things which astonish them.

Not long ago this newspaper called attention to unsanitary methods of handling dressed beef, and the caution seems to have done good. There are, however, other practices that might as well be stopped at once.

One of these is the habit some supply houses have of throwing down bread at the doors of grocery stores and leaving it there without adequate protection among the microbe-infested dust and open to the infecting properties of a wind-swept street.

One often hears the statement with regard to cooking, "If you only saw how that is cooked, you would never eat it again," and so on in numberless other cases of food manufacture and preparation. Those critics of course refer to unsanitary methods. That is bad enough in all conscience; but it is surely the height of carelessness after bread has been prepared with some degree of care and in bakeries that widely advertise themselves as "sanitary," to see the product of so much precaution thrown on the dusty sidewalk at the mercy of every passing accident.

VIEWS AT LARGE

Under the glamor of citrus production California is apt to forget that she has also an excellent crop of deciduous fruit every year. Cherry production alone amounts to more than two hundred carloads. Plums and prunes can vie in quality and quantity with the production of older states. Apricots as one can see by looking 'round Glendale are going to be a bumper crop this year. The rains have done great good to all fruits with the single exception of black tartarian cherries. Pears, peaches, apples and grapes are all in such condition as to promise vast profit if handled wisely from this time on. In every way California is holding well to its claim to be the premier state of the Union. That may seem rather a presumptuous claim, but its assertion is only discounting the actual fact by a limited number of years.

It might almost be asserted that street grade crossings have killed as many people as have fallen in the present war in Europe. While statistics are not at hand, it is certain that the toll taken of human life at the deadly grade crossing is so enormous as to make one wonder that humanity stands it. That steady sapping away at the numbers of the human race is just as deadly as the devastating march of the modern army and it should come to an end. In many European countries grade crossings have been practically abolished. In Great Britain the railways, while enjoying government privilege and protection, have been compelled since their inception to take every precaution that can lessen loss of human life. Grade crossings are very few there and then only on remote country roads, where there is practically no traffic. A few more lessons like that of the Aliso street accident the other day in Los Angeles may open our own eyes and compel a change.

How well Japan has learned the lesson of civilization may be seen in the fact that a national association for the encouragement of native industries is actively at work aiding native manufacturers to develop at home the production of most of the goods now imported from the United States. Japan means to be independent of all foreign nations. In view of what is going on between Germany and Great Britain at present, this may yet prove a wise move. In the case of war, Japan hopes to be able to produce within its own land everything that may be needed for the life of the nation. The United States may well take a lesson from the Nipponese neighbor.

Before long India may have a paper currency. From time immemorial India has hoarded gold. Already that country has laid up vast gold reserves. In years to come India will attract gold on a similar scale. It is believed that with the establishment of a paper currency, gold will come out of its retirement and become more common in hand-to-hand transactions.

There is no human device for offensive war that human ingenuity cannot meet with a counter device for defense. The German use of asphyxiating gases on the battlefield has been successfully met by the use of masks. It is up to the kaiser now to go the British one better.

When the Elks entertain the citizens of Glendale on Saturday night with a street dance there will be much rejoicing, especially among those of the younger set. "On with the dance; let joy be unconfined; no rest till morn when youth and beauty meet; to chase the glowing hours with flying feet." That sounds well and Byron, the author of the lines, knew how to extract the joy of life. But times have changed and the man who has to go to work at 6 a. m. has little to induce him to echo the words, "no rest till morn." As proposed by the Elks, even the busiest individual can afford to chase the glowing hours with flying feet until midnight warns him home.

WHY DUM-DUM BULLETS?

(By Oscar Ameringer)
A working man, a little dum,
Made for his boss a little gun,
A cartridge and bullet,
With point filed off to dull it.

Another worker just as dum
Made for another boss a gun,
A cartridge and a bullet,
With point filed off to dull it.

One day the two dum workers met,
Aimed at each other's wooden head
And each one sent a bullet
With point filed off to dull it.

Two bullets fled and said dum-dum,
Two bullets hit two heads, dum-dum,
Two dummies tumbled o'er stone dead
And ne'er knew what the bullets said.

ONE OF THE LOST

As this is written the public has accepted the death of Elbert Hubbard as a fact, and it is not too much to say that the public will mourn this remarkable man. He was a many-sided genius, for the brilliancy of some of his work and the vast total and wide range of it could not be ascribed to talent and industry alone. His imperfections were many, and attention only recently had been called to some of these in this column, but not, it is pleasing to be able to say now, with malice. Doubtless he was a poseur. In many instances he took credit for the work of others. Many of his attitudes were affectations. During his later years he had been so successful commercially that he had become obsessed by the love of money, and this had swerved him from his earlier ideals. His wares were in the market and went to the highest bidder, this being as true of his intellectual output as of the product of his factories. When these things have been said all the bad has been said. For the rest, Elbert Hubbard was a man of great heart and warm handclasp, who had a broad vision, a power of analysis, a most happy facility of expression, when he chose to employ it, and was a friend to humanity. His "Little Journeys" are gems of thought and construction, rich in historical truth and embellished by a restrained and ever chaste fancy. All his literary faults, his deliberate gaucheries of phrase, were omitted from them. Long ago "The Message to Garcia" brought him fame that had not waned. He retained and accentuated it by pamphlet, thesis, and occasionally by preachment leaning to frivolity. It is singular to have to add that as a writer of advertisements, either for himself or another, he was without peer. There would be no use to try to demonstrate that Hubbard was a great man, but surely the private individual, who for the force of his own intellectuality rises to such prominence as possibly to be the best known to the masses of any citizen of the republic, is of no ordinary clay.

SCHOOL REPORTS

Parents, entirely ignorant of facts and blinded by partiality, compare reports and too often agree with the children that "the teacher isn't fair." Does the report card help to raise the deportment? Is it not destructive rather than constructive? Why not let it be taken for granted that children come to school to learn and to practice self control-as they generally do-and in the reports say nothing about the deportment except in rare instances?

Accept the innocent mischief and the fun as a part of school-and what would school life or memories be without it-for as James Whitcomb Riley says:

"I believe all children's good, of they only understand—

"Even bad ones, 'pears to me, 's just as good as they can be."

As to promotion, what teacher does not realize at the end of the year, the utter farsce of it all? Often a child must be promoted because from month to month by the skimming process, he obtained the required mark, yet his immaturity and unfitness make it a wrong to crowd him on to more advanced work.

But, can we dispense with the report entirely? In order to secure that co-operation between parent and teacher which is such a power behind the throne, such an incentive to the child, the parent has a right to demand a report of the child's life at school. But, O, parents, how many of you would be willing to reciprocate and furnish the teachers with a report of the child's life at home—its limitations by birth and environment and what you are doing to overcome these; a report of the love, care and encouragement it is receiving and your efforts to send it to the teacher in the best possible condition of body, mind and soul? How much more intelligently and sympathetically could the teacher do her part could she but know. But as to the form of reports and standards of promotion, does not the subject merit the serious consideration of all truly interested in the welfare of the schools? —Teacher in Monrovia News.

UNION OF ALL CHURCHES

Goleta is a rural community in a valley lying between the mountains and the sea adjacent to Santa Barbara, with a marvelously rich soil, and about six hundred intelligent citizens. For about a third of a century two small churches—Baptist and Methodist—have ministered to the spiritual needs of their people, and to as many of other denominations as felt disposed to avail themselves of the privileges of these open doors. Union has sometimes been considered but not until the autumn of 1912 did it become an accomplished fact.

Other denominations represented in the place were Presbyterians, Episcopalians and Christians. These united with the Methodists and a few Baptists and organized what they called the United Church of Goleta. For one year this organization worshiped in a borrowed church. At the end of that time the four denominations named with a majority of the Methodist members reorganized and chose the name of the Federated Church of Goleta. This organization was incorporated, framed a constitution and drafted by-laws. With only faith and a few donations in sight, a lot 138x160 feet was purchased in a good locality, a bungalow church was erected thereon with a seating capacity of two hundred, a modern six-room manse, and between these buildings, for the use of the young people, a pergola with cement floors and walks, which will soon be vine covered. The cost of lot, buildings, furnishings and shrubbery for the artistic grounds was approximately five thousand dollars.

They have seventy-five adult church members, a Sunday school of 116 members, a C. E. society of thirty-seven active members, and at many of their social functions eighty young people are present. The church has a choir of a dozen or more good voices, a Woman's Guild of twenty-two members and a Missionary society of twenty members.

All these are live, active societies. Besides the regular membership, they have many adherents among other people who have never cared to identify themselves with denominational churches. No sectarian sermons or discussions—just the gospel of Jesus Christ. All denominational lines are obliterated—they are just Christians and perfect harmony prevails in each and every department of the church work.

The usual struggle for existence of churches in small country places is unknown in Goleta. The pastor's salary is paid monthly by check, and is enough to enable him and his family to live as comfortably as any of his parishioners.

One of the functions of the Missionary society is to propagate the federated idea in the state of California. In Urbandale, a suburb of Des Moines, Iowa, is a church organized on precisely the same plan as the one at Goleta, and has been in existence about the same length of time. In the state of Missouri they are also trying it, but the one here described is believed to be the pioneer church of the kind in California.

For over a quarter of a century the three great churches of Canada—Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational—have been gradually absorbing the smaller denominations, and at a meeting of the joint committee at Toronto in December they were united, and henceforth in that dominion there will be but one great church—"The United Church of Canada." In great and small places the spirit of unity is awakening.

SUBMARINE CABLES

The various governments of the world own together 880 cables, having a total length of 14,480 miles, and containing 21,560 miles of conductors. The French government, which takes the lead as to length of cables, has 3460 miles in fifty-four cables. As to number, the Norwegian government comes first, with 255 cables, having a total length of 248 miles. Finally, as to the length of conductors, the English government comes first, with 5468 miles of conductors, having a total length of 1588 miles. Private companies to the number of twenty-eight, own 288 cables, having a length of 126,864 miles and containing 127,632 miles of conductors.

NOT OFFICIAL

The account given in The News regarding the dances arranged by the so-called "Mum club" represented as being an organization of Elks, was inaccurately telephoned in to this paper. It appears that the Elks are not officially cognizant of any such organization, which is a club of young people, some of whom may be Elks and others not.

CONSERVATION OF COAST SITES

Negotiations now under way between owners of a large reservation of forest land at Mt. Desert on the coast of Maine and the federal government may lead to the transfer of this property to the United States as a permanent reservation, the most easterly in the national domain.

To persons informed as to the beauty of the island and its unique charm there will be no need of argument about the desirability of a step putting beyond all possibility of a changed ownership and use this territory by the sea. Along with the project to make the region about Mt. Katahdin a federal reservation it points to a higher valuation of the natural wealth of Maine as a recreation resort for the people, where the many will have fixed rights as campers and lovers of nature.

Whether such action comes by federal or by state process is not so important as that in some way the work shall be done. The method of private appropriation of a major part of the coast line of the New England shore has gone on unchallenged until recent years; and the only urban region along the entire stretch where anything like due defense of popular rights and needs has been made is in the greater Boston territory.

Maine still has tracts bordering on the sea which for relatively small sums can be saved for permanent, popular use. Private or group initiative, as at Bar Harbor, may lead the way to ultimate collective title and control.

When it is fully understood what the federal park reservations in the South and West are to mean for those sections of the country as they fill up with inhabitants and when urban centers multiply there, then the fine strategy of the conservation movement led by Theodore Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot becomes more apparent. An excellent beginning has been made in conserving the White mountain region of New Hampshire. The good work should extend to the lands of Maine, in the interior and also on the sea.—Christian Science Monitor.
